Personal Profile

'Shining Star' is Name and Ambition

by Debbie Conkey

A few years back, Teola Young had an obsession with snow. Her parents would playfully throw snowballs at her. She'd promptly eat them. Once she consumed an entire snowman. And often, she'd gather snow, spoon and syrup and head for the dessert-like powder. Snow-gulping aside, she now has grown to love activities more befitting of her seven years. Her interest has turned to ballet and competition. And on February 20, she was rewarded with something more fulfilling than snow. She received first runner up in the Universal Pageant Competition. Teola, a Mabel Paine second grader, competed in the "Our Little Miss" division by modeling, performing ballet and speaking. She learned of the competition only a week before and immediately decided she wanted to win.

For a solid week she worked with her ballet teacher, 15-year-old Paula Clifton. She'd only been taking ballet lessons for three months but was determined to win—even if it meant getting "yelled at" during practice on occasion and having to polish her routine in the backyard with the aid of a tape recorder.

The pageant was held and her persistence paid off. She received first runner up. But it wasn't good enough. "She cried and cried and cried," her mother, Joy, says.

"But when she learned the first place winner received first runner up last year, she wanted to start practicing again right away."

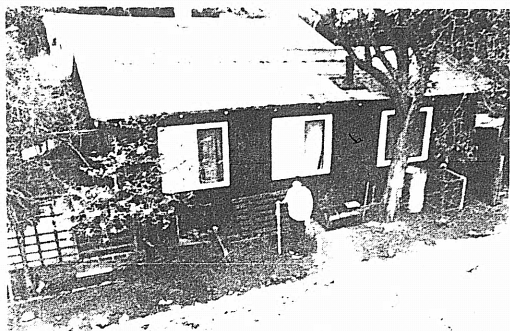

Between words, Teola munches on a garlic pickle. Constantly squirming, she basks in the attention. "Want to know where my name came from?" she suddenly spouts. In a matter-of-fact voice she replies, "From a lady who had the same name."

"Actually," her mother explains, "Teola is an Indian name meaning 'shining star'." She adds that Teola is a motivated child though a little hard to live with at times. "She gets a little uppity and has to be knocked down a peg or two."

When she gets older, Teola would like to be head twirler in the Rose Parade. Twirling, perhaps, will be her next passion.

But for now, she'd like to concentrate on something more at hand. She'd like to appear on television. Looking up, Teola grins. A child whose treckles monopolize the upper portion of her face. A former snowman eater.

And, she says, "If other kids can be on T.V., then why can't I?" As it is the only way it should be, and as far as she's concerned will be.

MIGHTY CLOSE - Peg Tompkins stands at the property marker which surveyors placed two feet from her house to delineate boundary between her land and that of development to the north. Before tract homes began to go in Mrs. Tompkins thought she had a 30 foot rear yard. (Debbie Conkey Photo)

Owner Sues Sellers of Properties

The chickens cluck contentedly as they peck at the feed. The cat licks its paw. The gander struts imperiously. The horses move amiably around the corral. The mother hen protects her brood of chicks as she sits on the eggs. Barking dogs respond to a knock on the door.

A tranquil, rural scene which pictures Yorba Linda as it once was. But Yorba Linda as it is becoming today and in the future encroaches perilously close to this aura of domesticity.

When Peg Tompkins acquired the property at 17591 Buena Vista, just west of Richfield, the animals had considerable room to enjoy. The property had a 30 foot rear yard.

Today that yard has shrunk to a mere two feet and the gentle rolling land has been moved by heavy equipment. A 12 foot, sharply sloping bank of dirt has materialized to the north of the house.

The land has been transformed into pads which will soon accommodate some 15 houses in another residential tract.

When Mrs. Tompkins acquired the property in 1974 she can't recall a survey being made. But she was made when the adjoining property was sold to a developer. That's when she saw the 30 foot rear yard shrink. In chunks of several feet at a time, until the last boundary stake was pounded into the ground two feet from her house.

The various animals were moved to new and less open locations. But the horse corral still presents a problem. It now stands on City of Yorba Linda property, the right of way for a widened street of the future.

Mrs. Tompkins has talked to city staff and city officials. They are sympathetic but she says they all point out that the development is legal.

"I know it's legal. But I ask them if they would like the same circumstances where they live. I challenge them to vote on something that would put them into the same situation that I am in," Mrs. Tompkins said.

The bulldozer snorts across the ground high at the new "mountain." Another stream of dirt cascades down the side, adding to the evergrowing barrier.

Legal action is being pursued by the beleaguered property owner. She urged, "I ask to my lawyer and ask him about my suits against the person I bought this land from and

Sam Snead Golf Tourney in May

It appears that the week's professional golf matches are being won by a "new face" on the tour each week. The purses are high and the first place finish can almost guarantee the winner a comfortable income for the year.

It wasn't always so. When the legends, Demaret, Boros, Fouts, Lagema, Jones and others were dominating the tour the purses were tiny for those days but nothing to brag about. The newcomers are making in these golfing days of television coverage and subdivision.

But those are the names everyone who has ever swung a golf club remembers along with a handful of the late comers, such as Nicklaus, Palmer, Trevino, etc.

Many of the familiar names, topped by one of the most incredible golfers of all time, an "old man" still on the tour, are still playing at the Yorba Linda Country Club May 25-29.

The occasion will be the first in a series of matches under the aegis of a new organization formed to aid the former greats of the golf world.

The event is named the Sam Snead Classic and the "Sammy" himself will headline the field. The purse will be $100,000. That kind of money for the senior golfers is being accumulated by the newly formed Senior Professional Golfers of America.

President of the group is Jack Slater, Chairman of the tournament's business partner, Ralph Torella. Slater is a former club pro and golf is his avocation. He is a shameless "name" dropper.

The tour's great golfers comes in his league, without exception. But the constantly changing line reveals that his association with these pros is a flimsy. It is easy to see why he is a moving force behind the attempt to make the tournament and the association a success.

He answers the phone and puts the reporter in the line to talk with Al Besselink. "Plug hell out of this. We need support to help some of these guys. Everyone didn't make a million dollars and a lot of them need help in a lot of ways," Besselink ponders.

Slater produces a letter. It is from

Unification Hearing in May

The hearing on the Yorba Linda School District's unification proposal will be held by the State Board of Education on May 11 or 12.

In making the announcement, YLSD Board President Paul Armstrong said that trustee Gerald Rost would be the coordinator of the local proponent presentation. The hearing will be held in Sacramento.

Upper K Plans Approved

That developments on the former ranches to the east of the city will change the face of Yorba Linda has been a certainty since the first vague plans of construction were unfolded.

The "new" Yorba Linda will also impact the Placentia Unified School District as has been reported. This factor was one of the major aspects of Planning Commission hearings last week.

Patrick Bowman, director of planning construction and maintenance for the PUSD, argued with Bernard McCune, representative of S&S Industries (Shapell) over a school site that will adjoin one area of the total development planned by the building firm.

Bowman was successful to the point that eight lots were eliminated from a boundary of the property by the commission. However, it less than this area is needed by the school district S&S can restore some or all of them.

Commissioner Ron McRoberts objected strenuously to the use of residential streets in the development by school buses.

This area of the Upper K Ranch development will have 140 patio home lots and five common lots. They were approved after the commission and McCune wrestled over several standard and special conditions which had been suggested by staff.

Also getting close scrutiny by the commission were plans for a 155-unit tract which will have private streets and access only through guarded gates. This concept, while approved, drew strong opposition from Commissioner Chuck Rosen. He voted against it.

Lack of yards was questioned in another phase of the development that will feature lake front townhouses. Planning Director Phil Paxton said that the "lake will be the yard." Chairman Howard Enksen argued against diminishing the lake to allow for more yard.

Minimum lot sizes and parking availability were the concern of Commissioner Bob Clemmer who cast a dissenting vote on this phase.

Towrapping the evening devoted to plans for the development, the commission approved a six-unit model home development.

Year Around School

With the blessing of the State Superintendent of Education, Wilson Riles, pupils in the Yorba Linda School District who desire to do so and others whose parents make them do so, the prospect of year-round school looms.

The district Board of Trustees has given approval to a program advanced by Don Anderson, principal of Linda Vista School. The program would fill those time segments during the year in which the schools are presently closed.

Also supporting the program is the school's Citizen Advisory Committee. If state approval is given the program will be tested at the one school and possibly expanded into all local schools, Anderson said.

He envisioned it as a method of "putting empty rooms to use." In effect, it would provide for year-around schooling. Attendance at enrichment and remedial type classes would be voluntary as would participation by staff and faculty.

The weeks being eyed are the two for the Christmas vacation, the one week for the Spring break, the period between the end of regular school and the beginning of summer school, and that time following summer school to the beginning of the regular school year.

Language, arts, math, social studies, health and science are the academic areas proposed for emphasis. Art, music, and field trips are in the enrichment category.

Anderson spoke of "moving in depth" study in particular curriculum areas, and greater use of bookless curriculum. He added that the prospects are great for improving the educational program specialization, exploring working with other groups, exploring new methods of instruction, developing more in depth working relationships with students and greater income.

Anderson remarked on trustee concerns about attendance, the disadvantages of building maintenance, fatigue for both students and staff and transportation. The principal admitted these problems may surface but noted, "We won't know what will happen unless we try it."

Andy Smith Trust Fund

Dear Editor:

The response to your news items about Andy Smith and the Trust Fund we set up to help his family far exceeded our expectation. The citizens of Yorba Linda opened their hearts and donated time, money and effort to this young boy.

Our Trust Fund goal was exceeded by several hundred dollars but most important were the prayers that came with the donations. We have received numerous letters and phone calls offering help.

Only wish it were possible to thank everyone on a personal basis but to do so would be almost impossible. We hope you will print this letter of appreciation so that everyone will know how much their efforts meant to the Smith family.

We want to say a special thank you to the people at the STAR who helped out so much in getting publicity and also the merchants of Yorba Linda who responded by donating gift certificates to our drawing.

God bless all of you.

the owner of the property who sold to the developer.

The lawyer is Robert von Esch in Fullerton. He confirms Mrs. Tompkins' claim. "We are basing the suits on adverse possession."

The attorneys explained that payment of taxes is a vital point and that the Tompkins property was assessed on what appeared to be land with a 30 foot rear yard that had a fence and that Mrs. Tompkins has been paying taxes on that basis.

That's the reasoning behind the suit against the seller of the tract property. The other effort is against the person who sold the property to Tompkins. The claim is being made that the property was misrepresented.

"What are her chances?" said von Esch. "She should recover from one or another."

There is a follow up phone call from Mrs. Tompkins. "I forgot to tell you. The water meter is buried under five feet of dirt. I can hardly wait until the man comes out to read it."

Sheryl Diana Riehmeyer, a Linda Vista School student, has been officially certified as a state finalist in the Little Miss California Talent Contest.

Nine-year-old Sheryl will compete in the event June 10 and 11 in Ventura. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Riehmeyer.

Sheryl will dance in the talent category. The State Finals is a preliminary to the National Finals to which the state finalists will receive an all-expense-paid trip.

Dr. Borst Chosen

Dr. Philip W. Borst of Placentia was named last week to serve as acting president of Fullerton College, an institution he has served for 20 years and which his father served for 30 years before that.

The appointment becomes effective May 20. Dr. Borst will serve as acting president until a successor to Dr. John W. Casey is employed.

Dr. Casey leaves the college May 20 to become chief administrative officer of the Seattle Community College District.

Dr. Borst was appointed to the temporary position by the North Orange County Community College District Board of Trustees during a regular meeting at which Dr. Casey's resignation was accepted.

Dr. Casey announced in late January that he had accepted a position as district president in Seattle, where he will head a three-college district.

Dr. Casey has been president of Fullerton College since 1969, after serving both as college vice president and as assistant to the college president.

Dr. Borst is vice president for instruction at Fullerton College, where he joined the staff in 1957 as an instructor. In 1960 he was elected president of the Fullerton College Faculty Association.

After teaching political science and history, he was named in 1967 to be assistant to the college president. In 1971, he became assistant dean of instruction and special services, and in 1972, associate dean of instruction and special services.

He was appointed in 1973 to his present position, which was then designated administrative dean for instruction.

New Area SCE Office

To better serve Northern County customers of Southern California Edison Company, a new business office will be opened at 413 Associated Road, Brea, on April 4, according to K. H. Watt, Edison area manager.

The new location is more centrally located to existing and anticipated future customers in the cities of Brea, La Habra, Placentia and Yorba Linda, he said.

A payment station at the Placentia Drug Company, 630 West Chapman, will remain for use by Placentia residents.

Edison will close the La Habra business office located at 145 East La Habra Boulevard and the payment station at Brea Stationers, 210 South Brea Boulevard, with the opening of the new Brea office.

Boys Club

Dear Editor:

The city of Yorba Linda is growing at a tremendously fast pace. It will continue to do so through the years ahead. The children of the city, (I'm especially speaking of the boys ages 3 thru 18) are in need of a place to go after school, in the weekends, and in the summer.

A place that will have games, a pool table, a few carom board games, checkers, a few pinball machines, perhaps two or three of them.

A place that will serve refreshments, a place where the boys can go that will not cost an exorbitant amount of money as a yearly membership fee.

A place where there can be organized games, field trips, and arts and crafts, awards given for various activities, that could be developed for the children with proper supervision in the club at all times.

I feel that it is time that all interested parents of boys in the city realized, as I'm sure that they do, that there is a great need of a boys club, and that in a prosperous city such as Yorba Linda is, people should sit down together and develop a boys club for the betterment of the children and the city as a whole.

The cost should not be the issue here. Rather let it be a matter of need for the boys. The welfare of the children should be the key issue here.

I, as an interested parent, mother, citizen of Yorba Linda, can see the need quite clearly. I, after talking to many of the boys of all economic standards, have come to the conclusion that the boys are bored with just playing in their neighborhoods after school. The boys of all ages all socio-economic standards, have told me that they would love a boys club in the city developed for them.

Boys, then would have a place to go to talk over their problems, have the chance to meet other boys with similar problems, the chance to meet boys of all economic standards, and, by this, then be able to meet their problems with great success. Let's give the boys the chance to do what I have mentioned.

The cities of Placentia and Fullerton both have developed boys clubs. There are many boys that attend these clubs on a regular basis.

The boys have a great time at the clubs, learn many things about life, people, and develop themselves to be better people in the society in which we live.

It is important to widen the streets, add a new street sign, and maintain the city. But, isn't it equally important, if not more so, to develop a boys club for the boys of today who will be the men of tomorrow?

Our future for our children depends on what we give them when they are children. Let's all join in an effort to develop a boys club this year.

I hope that all of the people that read this request for a boys club will agree with me on the importance and the need to develop a boys club for the children of the city of Yorba Linda, a beautiful place to live.

If other cities have developed boys clubs, this should certainly be enough proof that a boys club would be beneficial for the children, as well as for the city.

Signed,
Mrs. Maralee Otto

Plea for Voting

Open Letter:

To those of you good people who live in the Placentia school district, I would like to take a few moments of your time to express to you personal heartfelt sentiments.

If anyone ever tells you that running for any kind of public office is an easy job, I can assure you that such is not the case. As is the case with most of us these days, I am usually on the go most of the time. But I can assure you that the last couple of months have probably been the busiest of my life, especially in light of the crazy hours that a cop must often work.

Because of the growing, impersonal nature of our sophisticated urban oriented society, and especially during elections, it is easy to begin to forget that people are not just numbers in a ballot box or a score sheet but are real individuals with problems and concerns of their own.

The inverse of this is also true. Public officials are servants of the people, not gods. We are fortunate to live in a nation and under a political system in which this is the case.

Sometimes we may feel that this is not reflected by the realities of things; that public officials really don't care what people think. You, however, must make them care by making your voice heard in the political process.

When holding any public office, it is easy at times to forget the voters who put you in that office and to begin to take them for granted. Don't let them do that to you.

Again, I ask you to make your voice heard in the political process, not only by your vote during elections but throughout the year. After all, do not forget that this is your nation, your school district, your money.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those nearly one thousand people who went to the polls and voted for me. I tried to say something substantial about myself and what is truly important.

I can assure you that I shall continue to do so for as long as the good Lord allows me to. I ask you to do likewise.

The true christian spirit knows no such thing as discouragement. Again, I say to all of you, thanks. You'll be hearing from me.

Stanley Interrante

"It is a special pleasure to accept your very cordial invitation to become a member of the Honorary Committee of the Senior Professional Golfers of America." It is on White House stationery and is signed "Gerald R. Ford".

Other amateurs on the Honorary Committee include Bob Hope, Johnny Bench, Joey Bishop, Glenn Campbell, Bing Crosby, Steve Forrest, James Garner, U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater, Tom Harmon, Bobby Riggs, Mickey Rooney, Bill Shoemaker, Frank Sinatra and Flip Wilson.

Advisory board members are Willie and Jerry Barber, George Bayer, Tommy Bolt, Ed and Marty Furgol, Freddie Haas, Dutch Harrison, Dick Mayer, Henry Ransom, Snead, Boros, Demaret among others.

Not all the money will go into purses. Some will go to the Easter Seal Society and more to the Cancer Society.

Shafer said plans call for three or four tournaments this year with an expansion to 12 a year. One reason for dubbing the event in the name of Snead is that he will be 65 years old on May 27, right in the middle of the five day play.

Others will be named for former greats, probably one for Ben Hogan who may play in the initial tourney.

Tickets are available for the event at $8 per day or $30 for the five days. They can be bought at golf clubs or through Ticketron.

One of several persons injured last Saturday afternoon in a two car collision at Kraemer and Bastanchur in Placentia was Mary Jane Caswell, daughter of STAR owners-publishers Bob and Jane Caswell.

Miss Caswell sustained five broken ribs and several facial lacerations requiring multiple stitches. She and others injured in the accident were treated at Placentia Linda Hospital.

Miss Caswell was trapped in the car in which she was a passenger and had to be removed by firemen who cut the car open with a "jaws of life" tool.

Christ in Passover

"Christ in the Passover" is the theme for the unique Demonstration Sunday night at Rose Drive Friends Church. Robert Miller of the American Board of Missions to the Jews will spread the Passover Table. The live demonstration begins at 6 p.m. on April 3.

The Passover Demonstration helps Christians understand a significant practice of the Jews, but it does more. It helps relate Judaism and Christianity to one another. The celebration is explained both from a Jewish and a Christian perspective.

A full table is set as if ready for the Passover Meal. Then Miller explains each step of the celebration, and its significance.

Both the Biblical history and the modern practice come into focus. Of special interest to Christians is how Christ fits into the Passover Celebration.

Childcare for preschoolers will be provided.
